GRAHAM.—It will be seen that the editor of The American Baptasi "speaks tight out in meeting" upon the subject of Magazires.

GRAHAM's MAGAZINE—The January number of this popular and splendad Magazine is received. In mechanical execution it surpasses all previous specimes number and all rivals. Graham commences his new volume in fine style, and with the air of a man de ermined not to be beaten. The present number contains twelve pages more reading matter than is found in any other miscause, and we observe also that Graham commences numbering his pages with the commencement of the printed matter, while the other include in the numbering of the pages, the entraying we have do not speak of the fine pictures, and the unrivaled corps of contributors. All the world knows this.

MERTORED WOOD-CUTS.—Graham would like to know whether the world cale which appear in some of the Magazines can be otherwise than wretched. Any figure so twisted and draws, and cut, was feel bad.

ONN HUNDRED AND TWELVE PAGES.—Every number of GRAHAM, for 1812, will contain 112 pages, and will be illustrated with magnificent engravings.
